

MEDIA RELEASE from

Release date: 14th October 2001

Animal Healthcare Evening to benefit local cats

A Kinver veterinary practice is holding an Animal Welfare Evening, to educate local pet owners, with proceeds going to local animal charities.

The evening, on October 30th, will feature talks by local animal experts on subjects such as general health and welfare, behavioural problems, micro chipping and other issues. Local animal charities, including the Stourbridge Branch of Cats Protection, will also be talking about the work they do and featuring amusing stories.

There will also be a raffle, stalls selling pet-related merchandise (just in time for Christmas!) and providing information on local animal charities and how members of the public can help them.

Anne Payne, of Kinver Veterinary Practice, said:

“The idea of the evening is to let people know more about their pets and how they can do their best to properly look after them. Hopefully it will be relaxed and informative. Previous similar events have always been successful. We believe in doing our bit for local charities; we’re all here for the animals afterall.”

Helen, Branch Co-ordinator for Stourbridge Cats Protection, said:

“We are delighted to be asked to take part in this event and also to be benefiting from it. One of the aims of Cats Protection nationally is to inform the public on the care of cats and kittens and events like this are very useful.”

The event is being held on Tuesday 30th October at Chapel Hall, Potters Cross, Kinver. Tickets cost £3 and include a buffet and are available from Kinver Veterinary Practice, 54 Enville Road, Kinver or by telephoning 01384 873660.

- ends -

For more information or to arrange a photo opportunity, please contact Rob, PR Officer for Stourbridge Cats Protection, on 07884 432306.